

Growing Pains

SHEYLA MEDINA

The pantry is barren
Dust-covered pots
Unused spoons
Facing downwards
Smothering childish yearnings

A home-cooked meal

The kitchen in shadows
Lackluster tiles
Some cracked, some firm
Below desperate scurries Whispers of crumbs and sights and smells of comfort